

James Morrow, Data Manager

James' expertise includes: database systems and information management; software design and development; hardware and software installations, upgrades, maintenance and debugging; development and maintenance of computerized databases; and training and tutoring in computer systems. He is responsible for managing the computerized data storage systems maintained and utilized by GeothermEx's professional staff, and undertakes specialized data processing and software development tasks on a variety of projects. He works closely with Engineering and Earth Science staff to develop computerized solutions to analytical, statistical and data management problems.