

Roger Henneberger, Earth Science Manager

With GeothermEx since 1984, Roger has a broad range of expertise that includes: evaluation and assessment of geothermal resources; planning and management of geothermal exploration, drilling and well testing programs; technical and financial control of geothermal development and operations; wellsite geology, well testing, instrumentation and downhole measurements in geothermal wells; well targeting and design of directional drilling programs; design and management of computerized data bases; development of analytical and financial software; assessment of geological hazards; permitting and regulatory compliance; detailed petrographic and petrologic analysis; and geochemical sampling.